The young leader who carries the next generation of Lycia on his shoulders. The son of Eliwood, who is the head of Pherae -a kingdom in the eastern area of the Lycian League. When Bern invaded, he took the place of his sickly father as leader of the Pherae Army. Although young, he lead the army with excellent judgment and leadership to quell the rebellion against Pherae. Afterward, he completely devoted himself to the restoration of Lycia.

Roy lacks combat experience, as he is still young. He leads the Pherae army against the rebellion and succeeds despite that, using nothing more than his sword and arm. Not only did he surpass a leader's quick thinking and judgment, but also skill with a sword arm.

Roy's way of thinking is neither like a noble or soldier. He gives hope and empathy to not just nobles or soldiers, but to everyone alike. With that skill as a driving force Roy was able to gather talent from all over and build up a great army.

マーカス Marcus

The loyal retainer who supports Pherae's young leaders.

Born in a household of Knights who have served Pherae for generations, he personally taught the previous generation of Pherae nobility in ways of war and as a martial arts instructor. In the same way, he taught Roy the ways of fencing. He retired after the end of the war with Bern, but serves Pherae as a loyal retainer with his life.

Marcus has served over three generations of parents and children of the Pherae household - truly a model vassal. Thanks to his guidance, the young vassals Alan, Lance, and Walt are growing to be strong men. On the other hand, he often chides Roy's actions, as he strictly abides by tradition and observes organizational structure.

Nonetheless, he serves within Roy's army of gathered individuals of many talents as Roy's primary advisor.

A loyal retainer of Pherae who runs through the battlefield vigorously.

A young knight who serves Pherae. With a vigorous personality, he is constantly on the front line, sometimes appearing to fight in a reckless manner to people around him. He often talks about the end of the Bern war, or about how he will give his life up for Pherae. Even if he grows older, that straightforward personality will never wane.

Alan's prestigious family has served Pherae for generations, a noble retainer of Pherae, so to speak. For that reason, Alan is incredibly loyal toward Roy.

His seemingly reckless strategy is often criticized by Lance and Tate, and he suggests plans to Roy without thinking about the danger to himself. However, his actions are by no means for his deeds of arms. As a knight, he believes in protecting his lord and companions from danger no matter what -and this belief is what he takes with him on the field.

_FILE NUMBER

004

The man who remains cool and collected while analyzing the battlefield.

He serves Pherae as a knight, and is both a close friend and rival to Alan. Unlike Alan, he has not been serving Pherae long, but his loyalty is genuine. After the war with Bern, he works with Alan to restore Pherae. Sometimes he gives candid advice, even if aware that it may be rude. He always pays attention to the mistakes Roy makes along the way.

Lance has a calm personality -the exact opposite of Alan's obvious recklessness. He is an avid reader, and great at chess. In a support conversation with Clarine, he learns proper etiquette in how to approach a woman. He is a character who surely is accomplished in both literary and military arts.

He is from another region, and so, has a lot of experience in places outside Pherae. Marcus has high hopes that Lance will expand Roy's horizons with that. He certainly is unique among the Pherae vassals this way.

Because he lost his parents at an early age, he is overprotective of his younger sister Wendy and worries about her constantly.

Along with his companion Bath, he worries about the future of his country. He also encourages the regretful Bath, gives advice to the novice Ujay, and is often consulted by his lord Lilina. Of course, with being a heavy knight, his skill is top-notch. However, Bors is different when it comes to his younger sister.

He often pretends to run into her by accident, and thinks about himself and his growth to adulthood that makes him feel a little lonely. If he retires from service, that would also leave him a lonely older brother.

After the war, he returns to his older sister, Mary, who was waiting on the Western Isles. He endeavors to restore the ruined soil.

Although abundant in resources, the people who live on the Western Isles are not wealthy at all. As a result, a lot of them work overseas. Wade is one of those people.

While Wade talks about his sister Mary in a way where it does not sound like he's worrying, Lot does not reply to him much. It seems they have a bond where Lot is the older brother, and Wade the younger.

A thief raised in a Lycian orphanage. He is from the same orphanage as Lugh and Lleu. He met Roy and his group at Araphen, and joined them. He holds a strong grudge against Bern as they killed the head of the orphanage -someone who was like a parent to Chad. After the war he returned to the orphanage, and completely quit his thieving ways.

Chad is the oldest of the orphans at the orphanage that Bern attacked. For this reason, after the head of the orphanage died, Chad felt that he had to take care of his younger “brothers” and “sisters.” However, Chad had no means of making money. It seemed like he had no choice but to become a thief.

A priest of the Elimine church.

While searching for the whereabouts of Bern's missing "Fire Emblem," Saul came into contact with Roy and his party who were taking care of Guinevere. For the sake of thoroughly investigating the matter, he joined Roy's party. While he certainly has faith and knowledge, his personality is hardly that of a Clergyman --womanizing with every woman he sees.

His tendency to womanize makes people repeatedly wonder as to whether his actions and words are really that of a Clergyman or not. Despite that, he received orders from Yodel to search for the "Fire Emblem," a sign that Saul has the ability to carry out his duty diligently. With the state the world is in, perhaps monks like him are necessary. However, Elen and Cecilia complain of Saul's specialty of womanizing, and do not think him fit for his job. Even though he is disguised as a pirate, he will never forget his love for the sea.

A pirate during the disturbance in the Western Isles. Originally he was to succeed his father and to run his shipping company, but due to the war, found himself at a dead end, and reluctantly became a pirate. He encountered and joined Roy's company while in the middle of invading enemy territory on his own in order to avenge his subordinates. After the war, he gave up his life of being a pirate, and restored the shipping company.

He ended up becoming a pirate due to the war. However, it was not just the changing circumstances that led him to become a pirate, but also because his subordinates were murdered.

On the other hand, he helped Elphin who was escaping to the west -an act ill-fitting of a pirate. It seems just because one's occupation is that of a pirate does not mean they would have to be a bad person.

The company he inherited from his father was named "Belga Company."

and Bern's strongest Knight*

The strongest of Bern's Three Dragon Generals. He is always serving at Zephiel's side, as a devoted retainer who is deeply trusted. He led the northern army to attack Ilia, and had it conquered for Zephiel in a flash. After seeing Bern's army face a negative turn of events, he returned to support the domestic army, encountering Roy who was leading the charge. He is a brave and dignified leader.

Mardoc is Zephiel's greatest teacher and confidant -having been tending to him since he was a child. Having learned of a plot from the former King to assassinate Zephiel, Mardoc had helped save Zephiel's life. Mardoc became an enemy to the King due to foiling his assassination attempt, but due to a plan Zephiel had formulated, the King was murdered. Despite having deep loyalty to Zephiel, Mardoc could not stop the new King running rampant after his father's murder, eventually leading to his defeat at the hands of the Allied forces.

A dark dragon that was created for fighting.

A dark dragon called “The Dark Maiden.” She was originally a Divine Dragon, but during “The Scouring,” the other dragons sealed her heart -forcing her to transform into a Dark Dragon. She was asleep due to the “Sealed Sword-“a blade that reflects the owner’s heart; but was awakened by Zephiel. She pledged allegiance to him, and following the King’s will, created Battle Dragons in order to strengthen Bern’s army.

Idenn, as a Dark Dragon, had her soul sealed away, and remained in a deep sleep to the point that her purpose of existing was forgotten. Zephiel filled that empty soul by teaching her the “right” path that would “fix” the world, and so she became devoted to him. Even after Zephiel’s death, she continues to follow those teachings, but Roy used the Sealed Sword to set Idenn’s soul back to a blank slate. Idenn lost her heart once again, and found herself being raised by Fa in Nabata Village. A faint light sparkled in the heart that was lost.

She leaves on a journey with her escort Erk to find her family, but her status is soon found about by Marquess Laus, who keeps an eye on her and prevents her from leaving a village in Laus territory. She is rescued by Eliwood's group, however.

It is unclear whether Priscilla is aware of how much elegance she radiates, captivating the hearts of those around her. This is likely from the environment she was raised in. However, just because she was raised in a noble household does not necessarily mean she is unreliable. One she has made a decision, she will stick with it with her unbending will. There are very few people who are not impressed by Priscilla. However, as she has lived away from her family so long, she yearns for them a lot. She especially obsesses over her older brother Raymond (Raven) - in a display of excess fraternal love.

She does not have a shred of affection for Nino -a child from a previous marriage, nor for her husband Brendan. She is completely reliant and devoted to Nergal, and only seeks his approval. Brendan’s sons as well as senior Black Fang members suspected the second wife, Sonia, of withering down her husband in order to manipulate them as she pleased. The fact she killed Nino’s real parents, as well as her connection to Nergal, was revealed in the Water Temple.

A dark life-form made by Nergal.

Nergal praises her as the most perfect morph he created, with unfathomable abilities that far surpass that of any human. In accordance to Nergal's orders, she kills warriors in order to collect "Aegir*" -the essence of life. She has an alluring androgynous appearance and common points of a morph. A beautiful, deadly sage filled with darkness.

*Translated as "quintessence" in the official localization.

Like Ephidel and Sonia, she has the same beautiful appearance --like stars frozen over in the winter sky. Though extremely silent and unable to understand emotion, she seems to almost lament her ephemeral existence as a morph. However, her absolute obedience to her creator, Nergal, can never be broken.

On their second landing at the Demon Isle*, Eliwood's forces were intercepted and cornered by an army of elite morphs lead by Limstella and her incredible magic: "Fimbulvetr."

The ringleader working behind the scenes to take control of the continent of Elibe.

A pursuer of knowledge of what can be produced from darkness. After managing to spin his life span beyond mortal boundaries, he came to seek nothing but power -and fueled the flames of a war that engulfed the entire continent in order to resurrect the Dragons. A long time ago, he was friends with Athos -but a difference in opinion lead to a break down and fight -which Nergal lost. From then on he hid himself in darkness, quietly built the path to destruction.

He schemed to take over the continent of Elibe in order to gain enough power to contact the lost Dragons. To summon the Dragons, he had to collect a lot of "Aegir," and so manipulated the "Black Fang" from behind the scenes to start wars and spread chaos.

In the past, he sought more knowledge; however, in reaching that ultimate power he sought, he had forgotten everything about himself over time, the darkness able to engulf him completely.

A thousand years ago, it seemed he lived on the "Demon Isle." But all memories of those moments were lost in time.

The spy who risked her life to infiltrate the “Black Fang” in accordance with her Lord’s orders

One of the spies who works for Ostia. Though a woman, her ability is great enough to compare to the best of them. Marquess Uther Ostia ordered her to look into the disappearance of Marquess Pherae, leading her to infiltrate the “Black Fang” as a member. A series of incidents would see her to discovering who the mastermind really was. She is in a romantic relationship with fellow spy Matthew.

Leila had infiltrated the “Black Fang” and earned the trust of the executive Ephidel. However, Ephidel suspected her of relaying information to Hector. She fell prey to the assassin Jaffar, and realizing that her wish for a future with Matthew was impossible, she called out his name in her final moments.

Her corpse was left as a welcome gift to Eliwood’s party that had come to the “Dread Isle.” She was given a tender burial by Matthew.
